

Supervision Masterclass

Life Integration Process

For whom

We welcome people who work with clients in a professional capacity, for example in constellation work and counselling, therapy and pastoral care, supervision and coaching, medicine and care, school and teaching, justice and social pedagogy, trade and services, and many other fields.

What

Supervision on professional topics and cases as well as on work-related personal concerns in a combination of open supervision and constellation seminars. Among other things, it is about the art of helping, the appropriate not-helping, one's own limits and one's own strength.

Further training topics

- supervision and organisational constellations from the perspective of LIP according to Nelles,
- the supervisory question: where professional and personal issues meet,
- the context in companies, institutions and authorities: 'systemic' supervision,
- the phenomenological approach in case work.

How

Participants have the opportunity to bring cases, topics or questions from their professional lives to the table. In this way, they come into contact with the active systemic connections in a supervisory context. The dynamics of body and soul show where the professional touches the personal and which patterns and attitudes are at work. This often makes it clearer and easier.

Thomas Geßner

Theologian, teaching therapist and trainer for systemic constellations (DGfS), consultant, author. Born in 1964 in Halle (Saale), raised in a Protestant rectory, father and grandfather, married, has been living in Halle (Saale) again since August 2021.

(Co)writer of - together with Wilfried Nelles, a book about the Life Integration Process in Practice \(2014\). His second book (Thomas Geßner: How We Love), is about 'how our lives are shaped by unconscious love out of an inner necessity'. Hoe we liefhebben. In his latest book, The Blue Fish. On the Spirit of the Times, 2022, he draws on insights from constellation work to explore typical phenomena and unconscious beliefs of the immediate present in essays and shorter texts.
